NURSING INDUSTRY - CANADA

According to the Canadian Nurses Association (CNA), there is a current shortage of nurses in Canada estimated at more than 50,000 and this shortage is expected to increase to 139,700 by 2026.

The CNA also reports that the nursing workforce in Canada is aging, with nearly one-third of nurses aged 55 or older. As these nurses retire, the demand for nursing services will continue to grow.

In addition, the aging population in Canada will also increase the demand for healthcare services.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Can I work while studying with TEMC?

Yes. TEMC is a Designated Learning Institution (DLI) under the International Student Program (ISP) approved by the Government of Canada. International students enrolled in our Canadian Nursing Review programs are eligible to work part-time up to 20 hours per week during studies, and up to 40 hours per week during academic breaks, without a work permit.

What happens if my visa gets refused?

IENs have generally experienced a very high approval rate for visas for Nursing review programs. However, if your visa is rejected, we encourage all applicants to refer to the Refusal Letter to determine the reasons for the rejection, and then to try and resubmit. We have seen on many occasions, students successfully receiving their visa approval after their 2nd or 3rd resubmission.

Can I bring my partner / spouse / children with me?

In the past, students have been able to bring their families. However, it should be noted that not all IENs are automatically eligible to do so. In some circumstances, it may be recommended for IENs to come to Canada on their own and bring their families permanently when the time is right. We recommend IENs to consult with a licensed immigration consultant.

Can I take an IELTS exam instead of CLBAN Exam?
